On Washington's Birthday, the Middlebury college campus will be treated to what promises to be a thrilling affair. The Annual Intramural Winter Sports Carnival will take place next Wednesday, on the college hockey rink and the lower campus. There will be a total of 25 events run off at regular intervals during the day. Ski and snowshoe dashes and obstacle races will take place in the morning with the distance races and the skating events in the afternoon. In addition, the hockey team will play an exhibition hockey match. The game will probably be against the St. Lawrence sextet.

The rules governing the carnival are as follows:

1. All entries must be filed at the Athletic office Monday, 5:00 p. m., Feb. 20, as drawing for heats will be made at that time.

2. Each group is allewd two men in each event except the following: Skating dashes, 1 man; relay, 4 men. Full quota must enter and compete to secure entry points.

3. Points awarded as follows in intramural standing: Entry and competing, 25, 1st place 50, 2nd, 40; 3rd, 30; 4th, 20.

BLUE BASKETEERS HALTED BY U. V. M. IN TITLE MARCH

Vermont Displays Fine Basketball To Win 39-23.

By D. Francis Howe.

The Green and Gold basketeers put a big crimp in whatever aspirations Middlebury may have had for the State title, at Burlington last Saturday. While the loss does not necessarily put the Blue aggregation entirely out of the running, it nevertheless showed those who were present at the game, that the local quintet will have to step some to defeat their old rivals when they come here later in the season.

The Vermont club forced the play to Middlebury all through the game and showed that they were of the same calibre as the teams which have represented that school in the past. The three veterans, Capt. Prentice, Price, and Marvin, showed the same class that they have always shown. For four years they have formed the nucleus of a fine club at Vermont.

Only a few times during the contest did the Panthers really show well against their opponents. The Blue led at the very start, but after the Vermont aggregation got under way their lead was never threatened. On one occasion, just before the half ended, Middlebury came up within six points of their rivals, but this was their only real spurt. Neither team was able to find the basket for the first few minutes of the game, although they both shot several times mostly from long range. Finally, Johnson netted a shot standing just within the foul circle, sending the Blue into the early lead which they soon lost. A few moments later Halligan scored from under the basket and the Green and Gold quintet was off. Within the next five minutes they ran the score up to 12 before the Panthers again scored on a side shot by Sorenson. During this half the Blue netmen had no less than nine fouls called on them. All but one of these were converted into points by the uncanny shooting of the Vermont club. Captain Prentice alone shot four. The score at half time stood 22-14.

Immediately after the opening of the second half a barrage of baskets by Vermont sent them into a comfortable lead. The Panthers also added to their score early in this half when Johnson netted the ball twice, and Casey contributed a basket and a foul. The latter part of the half saw little scoring by either club and the game ended with the count standing 39-23.

KEEPING PACE.

Everything changes. The first axiom relative to evolution asserts that nothing can stand still for long. We, in collegiate America, are in the midst of the most rapid intellectual evolution that has occurred in any epoch in any territory, probably since the beginning of time. We are moving faster, living faster, changing faster than any previous period in history. But it is impossible to state at the present time whether we are moving toward an ethical and physical construction or toward the greatest destruction ever experienced.

The great tendency in college is to accept the latest thing out as the ideal, something that civilization has been waiting for for many years, something that all other peoples are hampered at not having, or are less happy in not possessing. This lack of a sense of discrimination is most unfortunate, and may lead to innumerable false conclusions and misconceptions.

The first motive of a college education should be to strengthen one's sense of discrimination, to enable students to choose between the good and the poor in literature, art, science. If a college fails in doing this, we may easily brand the college unsuccessful, and if the student fails to increase his sense of discrimination, we can well consider college education a failure.

PHI BETA KAPPA.

Eleven members of the senior class have just been awarded the highest scholastic honor given at Middlebury, Phi Beta Kappa. Few of us fully realize its complete significance. Those winning this honor are students, who, without exception, have been outstanding in college activities, and yet have obtained the highest grades.

Student grinds are no longer popular. The world is calling for leaders who are practical, interested in social activities, broad-minded men and women who can handle tactfully any life situation, people who can think, not have simply an impractical knowledge of books and learning that will do little in the solution of problems. This is the type of students that have received the Phi Beta Kappa honor this year.

We congratulate them.

PRIZES

Few students realize the great number of prizes that Middlebury has to offer undergraduates. There is some contest for almost everyone to try for, but as is generally the case only a small minority of the eligibles ever compete. One would think that more than ten out of six hundred and fifty students would have submitted poems for the Alma Mater contest. The annual Parker and Merrill speaking prizes are never taken advantage of by a plausible number of Freshmen and Sophomores. Two men out of the Junior class entered essays for the Deacon Boardman Peace Essay Prize last year. Contests sponsored by the Saxonian are continually started, but response is negligible.

Perhaps the prize most worthwhile trying for at present is the George Sedgwick Swift award for the best essay on "The World Does Not Owe Me a Living". Everyone is eligible for competition in the men's college and there should be many more essays than were submitted last year.

College spirit can well be shown in prize competition, as well as in more obvious college activities.

The most recent contribution to education theory and practice has come from Rollins College. Lectures and quizzes have both been adoblished there by the president, who terms lectures "preaching", and the quiz "inquisition." Contribution?

RADICALS?

College students do not have as genuine a lack of interest in religion as their criticism of compulsory chapel may imply. We are fundamentally, interested in our religious life. We are not trying to be radicals or revolutionists; we are trying to adjust the old religion to a world that has been changed by a world war, by new developments in science, by new social codes, and a new economic prosperity.

There is nothing that seniors fear more at this time of their final year in college than success.

LITERARY NOTES

THE BOOK OF OPPORTUNITIES

What 3000 American Occupations Have to Offer. Edited by Rutherford H. Platt, Jr. Published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1927.

To attempt to tell in one volume of 477 pages what 3000 occupations have to offer seems to be an impossible undertaking and it is obvious that many of the 3000 can receive but slight attention if the more important fields are to be given worthwhile treatment.

The editor says in his introduction: "There are infinitely more opportunities in America today than were ever open to any nation in all the history of the world.

"The purpose of this book is to reveal these opportunities, to show their relations, and to give an inkling of their meaning. The editors have left to other books which specialize on certain careers their fuller development. This ensemble of information is designed to be a lamp to the feet along the path rather than a searchlight revealing every nook and cranny."

Mr. Platt has succeeded in getting together a very interesting collection of material on various occupations and the bibliographies suggested on the several more important fields constitute a really valuable contribution to occupational literature.

Vocational experts would doubtless question his classifications, and statements made about many relatively unimportant jobs are so superficial and fragmentary that they are amusing and in some cases ridiculous. The book is written in rather jazzy style and the illustrations in the form of cartoons, placed as they are, in a supposedly serious work cause the reader to question whether the book itself is to be taken seriously.

There is much in the book which is helpful and reliable but the reader should be prepared to accept it with many reservations. E. J. W.

"KITTY"

If there was any doubt about the success of Warwick Deeping's first and second attempts to capture an American audience (there was none so far as we know, for the sale of Sorrell and Son, Doomsday have been phenomenal)that must have been shattered when there arrived in this country his latest, Kitty.

Like Sorrell and Son, Kitty is another post-War story, in fact it finds much of its material in the War itself.

Alex St. George was a weakling, physically and somewhat a weakling spiritually, who was cast into the War against his wishes. Fortunately for him he was loved by Kitty before he went, and against the wishes of the stern Mrs. St. George, the couple were married.

Mrs. St. George, the "good" woman type who is really a devil in disguise, refused to notice the marriage because Kitty was a "shop girl."

Therein lies the plot. Alex is wounded in France, and brought back to this country with a loss of all memory and his legs paralyzed. Mrs. St. George takes him home, and refuses admittance to Kitty.

The story hinges around how Kitty solved the problem of bringing her husband to their own home, a home which she had to make for him before she could bring him to it.

Kitty, of course, won out. But how she did it is some of the best reading we have done in many a day. Kitty is as good if not better than either Sorrell and Son or Doomsday.—Intercollegiate Press.

TO PUBLISH NEW ENGLISH TEXT BOOK

Professor Harry H. Clark Has Volume Nearly Complete.

Prof. Harry Hayden Clark of the English department of Middlebury college will shortly announce the publication of a textbook on English Literature. While the volume is now in the process of completion, the first chapters are already being used in the teaching of English Literature in the Freshman English department of the school.

The work is along different lines than any now in use in American colleges and Prof. Clark has received many inquiries from heads of English departments in other colleges concerning the ground covered by the work. In tracing the development of English literature from the earliest days of civilized England, Prof. Clark has shown the reflection of political, religious and social tendencies, so that the completed work is not only an outline of literature but a fairly comprehensive handbook of English history.

Prof. Clark is at present engaged, in addition to the work on his textbook, on the edition of the Poems of Freneau for the Harcourt Brace Publishing company. This work will be brought out in October of this year. Prof. Clark is also a contributor to the Encyclopedia Britannica and is rapidly gaining recognition as an authority on English literature. He is also a contributor to The Saturday Review and has written quite extensively for publication in various educational magazines.

Educated at Trinity College, Prof. Clark received his master's degree at Harvard. While at Harvard he won the Bowdoin prize in English which has been won by such literary notables as Emerson and others. Following his graduate work he taught at Harvard and Yale before coming to Middlebury. He has done teaching work during summer sessions at the Bread Loaf school of English of Middlebury college and at the University of North Carolina.

STRONG CLARKSON SEXTET DEFEATED 4-2 BY BLUE TEAM

Scores Tallied In Every Period—Fast Hockey Played.

In a fast game marred by questionable decisions, the Middlebury hockey team kept up its winning by pinning a defeat on a very strong team from Clarkson Tech on the home rink last Monday. The playing was fast and furious throughout and hard feeling prevailed due to the laxness of the referees. There was scoring in every period and at times it looked a bit dark for the Blue warriors, but they finally surged forward and scored two goals in the last few minutes, putting the game on the ice to the tune of 4 to 2.

The Clarkson team was the first on the ice in their green and gold uniforms. The Blue team followed shortly and received a hearty cheer from the crowd. For the first time Middlebury was treated to two referees, Walker of Clarkson, being on the job along with Barry of Burlington. Referee Barry dropped the first puck and the Middlebury forward line advanced into Clarkson territory for the first threat of the game.

The playing was cautious at the start and Kelley, starting from behind his own goal, skated through the entire Clarkson team, split the defense and slapped the disc through goalie Easton for the first score after only four minutes had elapsed. The Clarkson team saw that it was not going to be an afternoon tea and action commenced and lasted throughout the remainder of the period. About two minutes before the period ended, Dion, the Clarkson center, tied the score with a neat shot past Douglas. Douglas had been making wonderful saves all along and it was no wonder that one of the many shots fired at him get by.

Play at the beginning of the second period halted for a moment in order to convince a small dog that he was not the referee. The going was extremely fast from the very start of the second period and both teams were carrying their sticks high. The fast forward line of the visitors in three man combinations worked down to the Middlebury goal time and again but the able defense pair of Bates and Bossert stopped most of the rushes and Douglas made some wonderful saves of the shots that got to him. Once more a score came after four minutes had elapsed and again it was Kelley that propelled the rubber into the strings. In a wild scramble in front of the Clarkson goal, Easton was upset and Kelley slammed the rubber into the unguarded net making the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Blue. The goal was protested but the score stood.

Clarkson started off fast at the beginning of the third period and after only a minute, Dion took a neat pass from Burke and flipped it past Douglas. The Clarkson forward line kept the rubber in Middlebury territory all of the time for occasional brief splurges by the Blue team. The checking back of the visitors was superb and the crowd howled for Middlebury to "get going" but the game seemed to be about gone. However, Whittemore's shooting eye had not had a chance and when the chance came, Hal made good with a pretty shot from the side that got by Easton although the goal judge seemed to be unaware of it. Due to the hesitation of the goal judge the Clarkson team rightly protested, but once more the goal was allowed. With only a minute more to play, Whittemore once more came into possession of the puck and sent it crashing into the corner of the net. Once more Clarkson protested, claiming that the puck went through the side, but once again the referee ruled contrarily making the final score read 4 to 2. Clarkson stormed the Middlebury goal with a five man offense but with only a minute left to play the Blue team held its lead, thus making another victim to its list of victories.

The Clarkson team played good hockey. The forward line worked well together and it could be easily seen how they could make their enviable record. Captain Wayland was a tower of strength on the defense and was flashy on his rampages goalward.

Captain Simmons and Hill were hindered by bad colds and could not play their best. Bates and Bossert proved once more to be a great defense combination and what more can be said of Whittemore and Kelley than that they scored the entire team total between them.

The team is having a full schedule this week. Clarkson, Vermont, Norwich, Mass. Aggies and R. P. I., are being met in succession. While Captain Simmons realizes that this is a hard set of games, he is confident that Middlebury will be triumphant throughout.

The score.

Carleton H. Simmons, '28.

Simmons has been captain and coach for the past two years of the championship Middlebury hockey sextet which has suffered only one defeat during these two seasons. Because of their fine showing last year the team were awarded major letters for the first time. It is evident from their win over Vermont yesterday that the pucksters will easily retain the championship which they have held for several years. The strongest teams in the East have gone down to defeat at the hands of the Black Panther. Capt. Simmons is a Sage, a Waubanakee, a member of the varsity baseball team, president of the Undergraduate Association, on both the Interfraternity and Athletic Councils and the Student Curriculum Committee. He is a member of Delta Upsilon.

SNOW TEAM LEAVES FOR NORWICH MEET

Series of Bad Breaks Take Chances Away at Dartmouth.

With memories of bad breaks experienced in the Dartmouth Winter Sports Carnival of last week the Outing Club will send a team to represent the Panther at the annual Norwich Mid-Winter Festival, sponsored by the Outing Club of that school. Other attractions are to include the formal hop of the freshman class, fraternity house parties, hockey match, polo game, exhibition jumping, triangular winter sports meet between Middlebury, Vermont and Norwich, two plays staged by the Dramatic Club, and the Carnival Dance.

There will also be a polo game, high jumping for horses with mounts. The Dramatic Club will present two plays at the Savoy Theatre and movies of the cadets in action will be shown. Fencing matches, the Freshman Hop, and the Carnival dance will complete the events.

The men representing Middlebury in the snow events will be Captain H. Weston, '29, Ronald Burrows, '29, Henry Hunt, '29, William Donald, '28, James Dearborn, '29. If the team does not meet with difficulties, such as spills, broken harness, and injuries as happened at Dartmouth, they should have no trobule in retaining the State Championship. The men are entered in ski cross country, mile down hill, and proficiency races, snowshoe races and ski jumping events.

Norwich has been grooming for the event for some time and is expected to put a crack team in competition. U. V. M. had a team at Dartmouth and had an Inter-fraternity meet in which much ability was displayed.

The Blue team, although not placing first in any events, showed much strength. The Middlebury men all seemed to have had difficulties while competing. Burrows was injured before he finished his race, Donald was forced to drop out of a snowshoe race in which his chances were good, because of faulty harness, and Captain Weston was doing well in the jumps, making a jump only nine feet shorter than the winner, but his rating was greatly lowered when he spilled on one of his trys. Only four men succeeded in making all their trys without spilling.

NEUTRALS WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT

Beat A. S. P. to Hold Lead; Dekes Defeat B. K. and S. P. E.

The Neutrals retain their lead in the intramural basketball tournament as a result of the last week's games in which they defeated Alpha Sigma Phi and Chi Psi. The D. K. E. team also won two games, thus gaining second place in the league.

D. K. E. 34; B. K. 12.

The D. K. E. team continued their winning streak at the expense of the Beta Kappas, defeating them February 8 by the score, 34-12. The B. K.'s were unable to put up any defense against the teamwork and passing of their opponents and the result was never in doubt after the first minutes of play. Webber, D. K. E., was high scorer with twelve points, while Willis netted three goals and a foul. Kelly was the outstanding player for the losers.

Neutrals 40; Chi Psi 19.

In a rough game marked by many fouls, the Neutral team went on a scoring spree to defeat the Chi Psi team by 40-19. Throughout the first part of the game the play was even, neither team showing much form in passing. But in the last half the Neutrals ran wild and made a large score. Williams, Chi Psi, and Bulukian, Neutral, each with thirteen points, shared the scoring honors.

D. K. E. 26; S. P. E. 15.

The D. K. E. team won their fourth game of the tournament in beating the Sig Eps February 10 by the score 26-15. The game was closely contested in the first half, but the S. P. E.'s could not hold their opponents toward the end of the second half. The teamwork and shooting of the victors was good. Livingston, S. P. E., was high scorer with eleven points, while Webber and Willis starred for D. K. E.

Neutrals 17; A. S. P. 13.

In a fast game between the Neutral and A. S. P. teams, the former came through in the last quarter to win by the narrow margin of four points, the final score being 17-13. The game was at stake throughout, the score being tied many times, and might have been won by either team in the last few minutes of play.

The excellent defensive work of the Neutrals kept the Alpha Sigs from scoring. Ferry, Neutral, starred in the game, netting eight points, while Miller and Gollnick were outstanding for the losers.

JUNIOR WOMEN WIN IN BASKETBALL GAME

Freshmen Furnish Good Competition; Score 25 to 17.

The junior women's first string team easily defeated the freshmen in the opening interclass basketball game by the score of 25 to 17. The game was played in the gym Friday afternoon with Myrtle Bachelder, '30, refereeing. Tudhope was high scorer for '29 with a total of 10 points, while Marchiano was only one point behind.

The freshmen guards did great work and their passing was excellent. McNulty, with her non-imitable dribble, was outstanding. Gardner's long arms at centre were almost equally valuable. Eliot, who replaced Rogers as right forward, showed herself reliable in circling the hoop by piling up eight points. Legate's work was likewise consistent. All in all, the freshmen have shown much promise in their first display and by the end of the season they will undoubtedly furnish even greater competition.

The class of '29 still maintain their equilibrium as regards the championship which they won last year. It was plain to see that the juniors did not at all exert themselves until the second half. The old back formation of Manty, Avery and Sibley is top-notch, with the fortunate addition of Holden who meets all requirements. The forward trio is the same although the positions have been shifted. Marchiano jumps centre which, although not her position by rights, enables her to exercise her old hook pass and clever dodge to advantage. Tudhope and Drake are up to form.

The Line-up:

1929	1931
rf, Tudhope	Rogers, Eliot
lf, Drake	Legate
cf, Marchiano	Gardner
cg, Manty	Hagen
rg, Avery, Holden	McNulty
lg, Sibley	Morrison, Foote Morrison

VALUABLE BOOKS GIVEN TO LIBRARY

Circulation Reaches 15,565 Mark For Past Year.

The circulation of books in the Egbert Starr library of Middlebury college reached the number of 15,565 for 1927, according to a report recently made public by Miss Laila McNeil, who is chief librarian. The figures submitted to President Paul D. Moody show that of this number 9982 books were given out to students and 2436 to faculty members. The circulation from the reserve shelves was 3147, which was the number placed in reserve during the period. Only 2300 volumes were placed on the reserve shelves during the previous year. A total of 913 volumes were sent to the Bread Loaf Summer school of English, these being in addition to the library maintained there.

A total of 1844 new books were placed on the shelves, together with 83 old books, 215 periodicals and 32 replacements, making 2174 in all, an increase of 380 volumes over the previous year. Of the new books added to the library 569 were gifts.

Miss McNeil's report contained a mention of the gift of Archer M. Huntington, founder and president of the Hispanic Society of America, which was a complete set of the publications of the society. The collection is valued at over $1000 and contains reprints of rare first editions of Spanish masterpieces as well as a complete set of the "Revue Hispanique", the official organ of the society and the most authoritative periodical on Hispanic philology.

Another gift which was announced by Miss McNeil was that of Mrs. C. S. Hughes of Grand Rapids, Mich. This gift is a de luxe edition in leather of 60 volumes of French classic authors. The collection has a large value and Mrs. Hughes has announced her intention of adding to it during each year.

Miss McNeil stated in her report that the new additions to the library will probably be opened for use to a certain extent after the Easter recess, although it is unlikely that the Abernethy wing will be completed at that time, much interior work yet remaining to be accomplished. The addition will provide 10 additional rooms for reading and seminar purposes.

College Enrollment Largest In History

The student enrollment of Middlebury college for the year 1927-28 is the largest in the history of the institution, reaching a total of 1,145, according to the report of Registrar Jennie H. Bristol. Of this number 512 are members of the summer session and there are 11 graduate students, leaving the undergraduate body numbering 654.

There were 354 men and 300 women in college at the beginning of the second semester, according to the report The students are divided as follows: freshmen 182, sophomores 178, juniors 167, seniors 116, graduate students 11. Vermont leads in the number of students attending the college with a total of 193, with Massachusetts second with 154, and New York third with 136 men and women.

Ithaca, N. Y.—(IP)—Cornell, until recently a stolid old men's university, is definitely coeducational now.

The school which only recently allowed women to neter its portals as regular students, has just been given $1,650,000 for the erection of four new women's residence halls, the plans for which are completed, and the work ready to commence with the coming of spring.

The donor of the buildings is anonymous. He is a graduate of the university, it is understood, and his wife studied there recently.

Hickman and Remus were cited by a prominent midwestern educator recently as examples of the decay of college morals. With the same logic we cite H. L. Mencken and Sinclair Lewis as evidence that the church is no longer orthdox.—I. P.

BEYOND THE HORIZON

A phonograph record has just been invented which is nearly unbreakable (we almost said foolproof). It may be mailed by merely sewing it into a container without using pasteboard or any other protector. Now what will the movie comedians and the dormitory inhabitants do?

Bank vault doors of steel may yet pass. One vault door of pure copper, seven inches thick, was recently exposed to an oxyacetylene flame for six hours before it could be burned thru. The reason for this is that copper transmits heat better than any other metal, and so is much more difficult to raise to a high temperature. The first few layers are quickly penetrated, but after that the plates absorb the heat.

President Little of the University of Michigan has just established the Alumni University of Michigan, a thing new in educational circles. Enrollment is open to all Michigan's alumni and alumnae, who will each be free to visit his chosen departments, write letters of inquiry, question the professors, and have free access to the laboratories and the library. Tuition fees will be voluntary, depending entirely upon the conscience and purse of the individual. None will ever be graduated, but will be perpetual students. This is truly a step in advance for education; we trust that the plan may be widely copied if it continues to be as successful as its beginning would seem to indicate it will be.

Professor Perkins should have had Cady write the foreword of his new Calculus; Cady says, "It is a horrible example of what deviltry and man can accomplish!" Return the compliment, Perkie,—how about Cady's "Old Wives Tale"?

The first knitting hour was held at Pearsons Hall last Wednesday afternoon. Miss McNeil read from "Private Pete," one of the newest war books, dedicated to "the boys who will never come back." Though there is a great deal of pathos in it, yet the author succeeds in making it a book of smiles and the cheery account of soldier-life made a fitting accompaniment for the clicking needles of the knitters.

Mead Chapel Closed

In order to conserve coal the prudential committee of Middlebury College decided to close Mead Memorial Chapel during the cold weather. Beginning Thursday morning the regular chapel serviices have been held in the gymnasium. This is not the first time that the gymnasium has been used for chapel services as they were held there during the construction of the chapel in 1915-16.

Professors Arrange For Sabbatical Leave

Prof William Sargent Burrage and Prof. Arthur Milton Brown of Middlebury college will avail themselves of sabbatical leave during the next school year. Prof. Burrage heads the department of Greek language and literature and Prof Brown that of physical education.

Prof. Burrage plans a year of travel in Europe and will probably leave directly after the closing of the college in June. Prof. Brown has not yet announced his plans for his leave.

Prof. Lewis J. Hathaway, head of the department of music who has been on sabbatical leave during the present year will return to Middlebury next spring. He is now in Europe. Prof. Samuel E. Longwell, Burr professor of biology, also on sabbatical leave will take up his duties at the opening of the college next fall.

During Professor Abbott's illness, his classes will be continued under the direction of Professor Fife and Mr. Griffin, as they were managed during the latter part of the last semester. Starting in the latter part of February Mr. E. B. Cornwall, a Middlebury lawyer, will take charge of the class in business and constitutional law.

This arrangement is to hold until Professor Abbott's recovery, when further announcement will probably be made from the president's office.

Of course, eulogies will be forthcoming, but none can speak as eloquently as his own deeds.

MIDDLEBURY OFFERS DOCTOR OF MODERN LANGUAGES DEGREE

Is First Institution In Country to Present Such Honor.

For the first time in the history of the institution, Middlebury college will this year offer the degree of Doctor of Modern Languages. This degree has never been granted by any college or university.

The radical step has been taken by the French and Spanish departments of the college, both, of which have won wide decognition for the excellence of the work done here. The degree will correspond in some respects to that of Doctor of Philosophy, but will be awarded on the basis of ability to teach successfully, rather than upon intensive research work, according to President Paul D. Moody.

The step has been taken because of a growing demand for recognition of intensive work in languages, many students feeling that they do not care to work for a doctor's degree in philosophy but prefer to do practical study in languages rather than research work necessary for the philosophy degree.

The principal requirements for the award are four summers at Middlebury, in either the French or Spanish schools, after the awarding of the Master's degree, two semesters at an accepted French or Spanish university and one year of successful teaching experience. Further requirements are a thorough knowledge of the written and spoken language, fully tested by an oral examination, a similar requirement in a minor language and a dissertation in the major language elected.

"The degree of doctor of pholosophy too frequently requires a vast amount of research in over-plowed fields, among subjects which will later be of little value in teaching," Dr. Moody explained.

"The work for this degree is to be fully as exacting as that for the doctor's degree in philosophy, but it is intended that it shall rest primarily upon exceptional teaching ability in the chosen field."

Research such as has been required for a degree in philosophy does not necessarily enable a man to teach. We are flatly against making research the sole basis in awarding the degree. The demands on the student will be fully as severe as those leading to a Ph. D." President Moody said.

Prof. Julian Moreno-Lacalle will again head the Spanish school and will be assisted by a large staff of visiting teachers. Prof. Andre Morize of Harvard will head the French school.

Eugene, Ore.—(IP)—For the first time in the history of the school, a University of Oregon diploma has been issued written entirely in Japanese. This queer looking document, which starts at the right side and reads upward and to the left, has been forwarded by Earl M. Pallett, registrar of the University of Oregon, to Masa Nori Yamashita, of Kagawakon, Manuguma, Japan, a graduate of the class of January, 1928.

Yamashita is applying for a position and needs the document to go with his application. The certificate, which was translated and put on Uuiversity stationery, was the work of H. Tsuboi, a Japansee student from Portland.

VAN DYKE ADDRESSES COLLEGE AT VESPERS

No Man a Prophet Who Can See Only Disaster Ahead.

Rev. Tertius Van Dyke of Washington, Conn., spoke at Vespers Sunday on Isaiah's qualities as a prophet and on his reasons for an optimistic outlook.

"No man," said Rev. Van Dyke, "is a true prophet who can only see disaster ahead. Isaiah's prophesies were based on a real knowledge of the situation, and he decided that no matter how unpromising the present outlook was, that there were three paths, which if followed, would lead to better conditions.

"The three things that Isaiah wished for were these: First, as a foundation of all good social life, a just and righteous government. Government has a great influence on the morality of the people; but we must remember when we judge those who govern us that while it is easy to recognize dishonesty, it is not always easy to recognize righteousness and justice. However, religion must govern everything, even our politics, for religion can only survive in a well governed social organization.

"The second essential is for the race to produce men of great character. We need great character everywhere both in public and in private life, and a great character does not always mean one who receives a great deal of publicity, but one who gives himself to mankind without stint. It is by men of this sort that history has been made, in fact we might almost say that history is nothing but the biographies of spiritually great men.

"Everyone can help mankind, I have never met anyone who was incapable of helping, but I have met many who were unwilling, through laziness, indifference, or a false sense of inferiority, and these are the people whose cooperation we need to improve our society.

"The third thing that Isaiah suggested is to train the ability to discern character and to exercise that ability. Character must be discerned and qualities called by their true names, for in this way much that is wrong could be stopped, such as the practice of getting wealth by catering to evil.

"These three features have never yet been found together in any age, but still they are not only a vision, but a program that we can keep before us always. Begin today that the effect may be soon produced."

MARS.

Toronto, Ont.—(IP)—Two hundred years ago Jonathan Swift in "Gulliver's Travels" imagined two moons revolving around Mars. Fifty years ago they were discovered.

This was a remarkable discovery, according to Mr. F. T. Stanford, who recently addressed a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society at Toronto University, because the moons are very small, only ten miles in diameter, and seen through telescopes with great difficulty.

The markings on Mars, according to Professor Stanford, the lights and shades, change with the seasons, and the theory of vegetation has been established. The surface looks different at different times of the year. The straight lines on the planet, called, "canals" have been shown to be optical illusions, and yet there are still proofs offered for man-made canals.

The best evidence of life on Mars, however, is the temperature of the planet, which is quite amenable to life. The planet also has an atmosphere whose density exceeds even that of the earth.

SEEK YE NO FURTHER, DIOGENES . . .

THIS jobbie Diogenes was a Greek who left his fruit stand for the commendable purpose of questing for honesty by good old-fashioned lamp-light. And now, loud and ever clearer, rings the cry from the housetops: "Diogenes—throw away your lantern . . . here's an honest cigarette! Have a Camel!"

Camels have but one raison d' être—to pack the smoke-spots of the world with the "fill-fullment" every experienced smoker seeks. Fill your own smoke-spot with a cool cloud of Camel smoke, and hear it sing out—"Eureka!" (from the Greek, "Eureka," meaning—"Oboy, here 'tis!").
